Roosevelt Leaves National Capital to Visit Arkansas

Chief Executive to Speak in Little Rock Late Wednesday

PLAN CELEBRATION

Robinson, Caraway and Jesse Jones to Accompany President

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN En route to Little Rock.—(P)—With Congress recessing a week, President Roosevelt Tuesday was off on a 4,000 mile trip to the west and southwest with scheduled speaking engagements in Arkansas, Texas and Indiana. He left Washington early Tuesday on a train headed for Hot Springs and Little Rock. At the latter city he will make his first scheduled address Wednesday, commencing Arkansas' centennial celebration.

Reception Committee LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The personnel of the reception committee to greet President Roosevelt when he arrives in Hot Springs Wednesday was announced Tuesday at centennial headquarters.

The committee includes Governor Futral, Mayor McLaughlin of Hot Springs, Congressman Driver, Terry, Parks, Fuller, Cravens, Miller, McClellan and Harvey Couch, chairman of the Centennial commission.

To Speak at Little Rock WASHINGTON.—(P)—Clearing his desk of pressing business, President Roosevelt left Washington by special train at 12:03 a. m. Tuesday for a week's trip through Arkansas, Texas and Indiana.

He will speak Wednesday evening at Little Rock in commemoration of the 100th birthday of Arkansas' statehood, the morning of June 12 at Dallas, Tex., in celebration of the Lone Star state's independence centennial, and Sunday morning at Vincennes, Ind., where a memorial to George Rogers Clark, Northwest Explorer, will be dedicated.

The president has announced he would speak on historical subjects only and that the tour is not intended to vie with the Republican national convention for attention.

Robinson in Party He may have a few words of praise however, for Democrats facing re-election campaigns this fall. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, formerly floor leader, was invited to accompany the executive to Little Rock.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and a citizen of Houston, planned to go as far as Texas. The presidential party also included Senator Caraway of Arkansas; Carl A. Crowley, solicitor of the Postoffice Department and a Texan; Charles A. Jones, general manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation and Brooks Hays, Democratic national committee man of Arkansas.

Both presidential secretaries, Marvin H. McIntyre and Stephen T. Early, and Col. Edwin M. Watson and Capt. Paul Bastedo, military and naval aides, will make the trip.

After Mr. Roosevelt's Little Rock speech he will visit the San Jacinto battle field at Houston and make a rear platform appearance at Austin next Sunday. He will visit Lincoln's birthplace at Hodgenville, Ky.

After a stop in Austin, he was to speak, on Friday, June 12, at Dallas, focal point of the Texas Centennial, then leave for Fort Worth. The chief executive's next stop was to be Vincennes, Ind., on Sunday, June 14, to participate in dedication of the George Rogers Clark memorial. Then, after a Kentucky stop, he was slated to return to Washington June 15.

Charges against two other Missouri Pacific engineers for holding crossings too long were continued until June 15.

Alonso Ellis, arraigned on a charge of carrying a pistol, pleaded guilty and was assessed a $50 fine.

A preliminary hearing for Robert Lindsey, 15-year-old negro youth charged with the murder of Liddie Galston, negro girl, will be held at 9 a. m. Thursday before Municipal Judge W. K. Lemley.

Officers said that the Goston girl died of a ruptured kidney following an altercation with Lindsey, who first told officers that he loved her and that he "guessed he squeezed her too hard."

Mrs. Roosevelt to Visit Dyess Colony

First Stop in Arkansas Will Be at Rehabilitation Project

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The 480 families at the Dyess colony government rehabilitation project in Mississippi county Monday prepared eagerly to extend first greetings on behalf of Arkansas to America's "first family," headed toward this state to do honor to the centennial year.

As President Roosevelt prepared to leave the White House late Monday night, traveling by special train toward Hot Springs and Little Rock for his Wednesday engagements, Mrs. Roosevelt turned southward from Des Moines, Iowa, where she spoke Monday at Drake University.

Mrs. Roosevelt, traveling by way of St. Louis, will precede the president into this state, in which her first stop will be at the Mississippi county colony named for the late WPA administrator, W. R. Dyess, to whose work the first lady has paid high tribute.

With a secretary, she will arrive in Memphis shortly after 8 a. m. Tuesday, and will immediately cross the river by car, accompanied by Arkansas WPA Administrator Floyd Sharp and assistants for the drive to Dyess.

Hempstead Robber Is Given Parole

Roger Monroe Is One of 77 Convicts to Receive Clemency

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The state penitentiary board Monday granted 77 paroles out of some 300 applications considered.

Clemency was given 38 white prisoners and 39 negroes. The 300 applications were the largest number ever considered by the board at one sitting.

Among those freed was Roger Monroe, serving four to seven years from Hempstead county on bank robbery charges. He was sentenced October 9, 1934 for the Blevins Bank robbery.

J. P. Bruce of Hempstead county, sentenced to two years for forgery and uttering, was also given a parole.

John Spouse of Nevada county, sentenced to one year on a grand larceny charge, was given a parole.

10 Escaped Inmates Are Still at Large

Four Convicted Killers Among Those Sought in Big Manhunt

ST. PETER, Minn.—(P)—Ten maniacal criminals, including four convicted killers, still eluded Southern Minnesota's greatest man hunt Monday night, 24 hours after they and six others fled from the state insane asylum here.

Every available police officer in fifteen counties, reinforced by national guard machine gunners, pressed the search with only five of the original 16 escaped inmates back in confinement.

Still at liberty was Lawrence De Vol, Karpis-Barker trigger man, credited with having engineered the break Sunday night. Another lifer at large was Albert Saroko, a convicted murderer, who like De Vol was branded by authorities a "desperate man."

St. Paul police guarded De Vol's home in that city. Extra details of deputy sheriffs and federal men protected the Ramsey county cell of Alvin Karpis, awaiting trial for kidnapping, who once joined De Vol in a Kansas prison break.

Yerger's Daughter and Harris Chosen Heads of Faculty

Myrtle Yerger Elected Ass't. Supt. for Hope Negro Schools

HARRIS PRINCIPAL

Remainder of Local Negro Faculty Also Elected by School Board

Myrtle Yerger, daughter of the late Henry Yerger, was elected assistant superintendent in charge of negro schools, and James Harris, vocational teacher, was named principal of negro schools, at a special meeting of the Hope Board of Education Monday night.

The daughter of the late superintendent has been a member of the local negro faculty for several years.

Monday night's action by the school board filled the vacancy created by the death of Henry Yerger, whose 50-year career as local negro superintendent was the longest in the state.

With the election of the white schools' faculty last month, school business preceding the re-opening in September was finished Monday night, and Miss Beryl Henry, superintendent, planned to leave Hope Tuesday for special school research work, in which she has won a scholarship.

The complete list of negro teachers follows:

T. A. Hamilton, E. N. Glover, Emma W. Walker, Ella Yerger, Naomi Yerger, Georgia Yerger, Mary Tellington, Emma Cooper, Lucine Harris, Edna Glover, Cora Chambers, Lula Benton, Irene Hamilton, Mildred Wright, Alfretha Waller, Luther A. Clark, Ethel Johnson.

New Strikes Face French Government

Northern Factory Workers Join Miners in General Walkout

PARIS, France.—(P)—New strikes spread rapidly Tuesday through provinces as the socialist government and general federation of labor strove to induce strikers to observe agreements signed with employers.

Factory workers in northern France continued to walkout, sympathizing with 150,000 miners who have left their shafts.

Miners On Strike PARIS.—(P)—While the General Federation of Labor urged a million workers to return to their jobs under the terms of a "proletarian victory" agreement Monday, the 150,000 coal diggers of Northern France called a general strike.

They said they could not live on wages of 594 francs (about $40) a month. They charged that French workings were idle and French miners unemployed in the north while owners gave work to German diggers in the Saar.

The owners, declaring the market depressed, insisted that work was distributed equally when there was plenty. In some places mine officials were held prisoner for a time, but leaders of the workers ordered them freed.

New Strikes Called Scattered new strikes also were called in the Paris building trades, in the Rouen industrial area and on the docks at Dunkerque, but generally the "folded arms" strikers were struggling back to work.

The government announced that white collar workers are "still far from agreement" with their employers on the question of salaries after more than five hours of negotiation.

New strikes broke out in Bordeaux, Lille and other provincial cities.

Great Victory for Labor Employers conceded wage increases of from 7 to 15 per cent, recognition of unions and collective bargaining contracts, a 40-hour week and paid vacations under strong pressure from Leon Blum's new people's front government.

By mid-week, labor leaders believed most of the idle workers would be back.

Leftists hailed the agreement as a historic victory for the common people. The Rightist press expressed fear lest the country be harmed by the strain of higher wages and shorter hours. They forecast higher prices.

Wages were cut sharply during the economy regime of Pierre Laval.

Railway Head Flays U. S. Retirement Plan

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington railway lines, testified in the District of Columbia court Tuesday that he believed the government's railroad retirement plan would "tend to destroy loyalty among the employees."

First Session of G.O.P. Convention Is Listless Affair

None of Party Wrangles Heard at Cleveland Tuesday

SOME NOT PRESENT

Routine Business Is Taken Up and Meeting Is Recessed

CLEVELAND.—(P)—In a perfunctory session which brought none of the party strife to surface, the republican national convention opened Tuesday amidst a profusion of Landon sunflowers.

Under the diplomatic guiding of the gavel of Chairman Fletcher, routine business was dispatched in less than an hour.

Some delegates and many holders of gallery tickets didn't show up for the opening of the convention.

John Hamilton, campaign manager for Governor Landon, was in the center of a group directly beneath Chairman Fletcher during most of the proceedings.

He said "all is well" and let it go at that. Senator Borah of Idaho, not a delegate this year, remained away from the convention hall.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, visited party leaders on the platform. There were no demonstrations. The convention recessed until 7 p. m. when the keynote speech is scheduled to be delivered.

Landon Victory Seen Supporters of Governor Al. M. Landon of Kansas Monday reiterated claims that the opening would find him assured of the nomination and they continued whirlwind efforts to gain an overwhelming victory.

The divided but active opponents of the governor emphasized that the first day of the convention would be given over to a round of formalities.

Noting that two or three or maybe more days would elapse before the first polling of delegates, they contended much could happen in that time.

From Borah and from within the headquarters of Col. Frank Knox of Chicago came concessions that Landon was the leading candidate. However, far from conceding that the battle was over, Knox Monday night headed for the convention scene to direct personally his campaign for the nomination.

In headquarters of his own, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, who Sunday counseled against a "bandwagon rush" for any candidate, Monday spent active hours in conversation with men from a dozen states.

Nor was Borah's statement that he would join no organized movement against Landon taken to mean that he would yield in his position as a rival candidate.

"My first interest is in the platform," said Borah to the loyal group of Idaho delegates, and followed this up with a series of statements.

At a press conference he placed a big "if" in front of any advancement of a platform of his own. He said he would propose certain planks "if" he would be allowed to go before the convention personally should they be turned down by the platform committee.

John Hamilton, organizer for Landon, who undertook to answer Borah's attack upon what he implied were Landon platform planks, made it clear that the Kansan's forces would not take the initiative in securing any such convention invitation for Borah.

Inmates Removed Benton Hospital

400 Patients to Be Taken to New Plant Near Benton This Month

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Superintendent A. C. Kolb of the State hospital said Monday that the transfer of 50 patients from old buildings in Little Rock to the new plant near Benton Sunday was so successful that 100 more patients probably will be moved Thursday.

These patients, joined by 50 others who have been stationed at the new hospital for some time, ate a meal Sunday in a cafeteria, the first such style of service afforded non-violent hospital patients in Arkansas.

Kolb said approximately 400 patients will be transferred from Little Rock to Benton this month. The rapidity of movement will be determined by the manner in which the patients accustom themselves to the new style of eating.

Italy May Seek German Alliance

Warns France to Lift Sanctions at Geneva Meeting

PARIS, France.—(P)—Italy warned France she immediately would leave the League of Nations and seek an alliance with Germany unless a move is made to lift sanctions at the next Geneva meeting. Diplomats said Monday night.

The Italian ambassador to Paris delivered this warning in a verbal communication to the French Foreign Office, and added:

"Italy hopes France will not assume an attitude at Geneva which would create an impossible situation for Italian honor."

Most of France's diplomatic representatives in Europe were called back to Paris by the new government and will confer this week with Yvon Delbos, the new foreign minister. He conferred with the ambassador to Italy and the minister to Czechoslovakia, among others.

Ex-Convict Faces Charge of Murder

Adell Allen Is Held in Death of Forest Ranger

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(P)—A first degree murder charge is being prepared against Adell Allen, 24, of Scott county, who State Ranger John Hendricks said confessed he was the slayer of a Forest Ranger.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Oscar Smith said he probably would file the charge at Waldron Tuesday.

Allen, a sawmill worker and described as a former Texas convict, remained at the county jail after repeating his story of how the Forest Ranger, Eben Bethel, 45, was shot and killed on a mountain trail 12 miles northeast of Waldron.

Bethel's body was found June 2, the day he was slain.

Britain Defaults on War Payments

New Proposal Is Expected for Settlement of Debts

WASHINGTON.—(P)—As Britain defaulted on its June 15 installment Monday, it was predicted on Capitol Hill that the French, British and Italian governments soon would make new proposals for settlement of their war debts to the United States.

Senator Lewis of Illinois, long a bitter critic of war debt defaulting nations made the prediction, State Department officials said, however, they had not heard of such moves.

Lewis described a plan by which he said the three European powers could offer goods and services to this country to be credited to their existing obligations.

Note From Lindsay Earlier, the State Department made public a note from the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, conveying notice of his government's default on a $668,474.071 payment falling due next Monday.

The British note was the first word from the 13 debtor nations, which will owe $1,160,122,766 on June 15. Expectations were that all except Finland would follow Great Britain's lead in new defaults. Finland thus far has met all its payments promptly.

The British ambassador said that Great Britain's inability to pay was due to reasons "no less valid now" than when the government first suspended all payments in June, 1934. At that time, Great Britain had agreed to forego payments due it from other European nations and took the position that it could not therefore continue to pay the United States.

Concrete Stadium For Local School Gets Approval

Up to Community to Raise $2,500, Coach Hammons Reports

APPEALS FOR AID

Suggestions Are Asked on How to Obtain Local Backing

Construction of a $20,000 concrete stadium for Hope High School, $17,500 of which the federal government would provide, was proposed Tuesday by Coach Foy Hammons.

Mr. Hammons said that the project for such a stadium here has been approved by Washington authorities, the state PWA office at Little Rock and the district office here.

He appealed for suggestions on how the necessary $2,500 could be obtained locally.

In a statement Mr. Hammons said: "The proposed stadium for Hope High School is a duplication of the new football stadium at Henderson State Teachers college at Arkadelphia which will be completed early in September.

"A stadium like this would give Hope an opportunity to secure big-time football games. It would mean a permanent piece of property which would add to the beautification of the school and would be a fine show place for outdoor entertainment of various kinds.

"Such a stadium would seat 4,000 persons, being 15 tiers high with two rows of box seats on either side of the field, two dressing rooms and showers, and a nine-foot tile fence around the field.

"It would replace the present wood stadium which has a seating capacity of slightly more than 2,000. It was constructed two years ago and at present is badly in need of repairs.

"The fence was built four years ago. Part of it was leveled by wind this spring. It is estimated that $500 will be required to replace it alone.

"This project has been approved and work is ready to start as quickly as $2,500 can be obtained. This stadium means too much to be turned down when it can be obtained for $2,500.

"Next fall we hope to have one of the best high school teams in the history of the school. We have a stiff schedule ahead of us, including games with Pine Bluff, Hot Springs, El Dorado, Camden, Jonesboro.

"Any suggestions on how we can obtain this stadium which has been assured, provided we raise $2,500, will be appreciated," the coach concluded.

Disbarment of Luciano Lawyers Asked by Dewey

NEW YORK.—(P)—Disbarment of two lawyers who participated in the vice trial of Charles (Lucky) Luciano and eight others, Monday was sought late Monday by Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey.

Earlier, Dewey's office had said bribes were offered in an unsuccessful effort to deter prosecution in the vice case.

Dewey did not disclose the names of the lawyers he will seek to have disbarred, but his spokesman said one acted as "front man" for one of the men convicted while the other acted under regular retainer for a criminal ring.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When the baby is a year old, it will be taking a diet approximately as follows:

At 6 o'clock in the morning it should have from seven to eight ounces of milk.

At 10 o'clock, it may have some cereal, about four tablespoons; seven to eight ounces of milk, some of which may be placed on the cereal; and a cracker or piece of toast.

At 2 o'clock, the baby may have from four to six ounces of vegetable or meat broth, or it may take one egg, or as a third alternative, some scraped or chopped meat.

To this may be added some white vegetables, such as two tablespoons of potato or rice, and from two to four tablespoons of a green vegetable, such as string beans, peas, or spinach.

The baby also should receive from five to eight ounces of milk, the smaller amount if it has some broth.

Then, at 6 o'clock in the evening, it may have four tablespoons of cereal with seven to eight ounces of milk, some of which is placed on the cereal.

It may also have, at this time, a cracker or a small piece of toast, and one or two tablespoons of cooked fruit, which has a slight laxative quality.

Babies thrive best on a strict daily schedule. If you compare the life and character of a baby who has been suitably trained with those of a child who has been allowed to develop in a haphazard manner, you will realize at once the importance of a definite routine.

Babies become accustomed to a fixed schedule. They will act almost like an alarm clock in notifying those who take care of them that the time has arrived for some definite procedure.

A baby that is fed irregularly will be yelling most of the time for food. The baby on a regular schedule is fed at 6 o'clock in the morning, gets some orange juice at 8:30, and at 9 o'clock put on its chair for action of the bowels. At 9:15 it has a bath, and at 10 o'clock another feeding and some cod-liver oil. From 10:30 until 1:45 p. m., the baby may be outdoors in its carriage, presumably asleep. If it is a normal baby and comfortable, it will not cry during this period.

At 2 o'clock, the baby is fed again, and from 2:30 until about 5:30, the baby again may remain outdoors in its carriage. At 5:30, it will be undressed, sponged, and made ready for bed.

At 6 o'clock, it will be given another feeding, with some cod-liver oil. At 6:15, it may be put to bed.

When the baby is a year old, the feeding at 6 o'clock in the morning is substituted for one given at 7 or 8 o'clock.

Your Children

Are examination for "passing" right or wrong? Are schools discharging that strain and resultant emotional scars from failure to make good, are effecting the good of a goal to strive for and the satisfaction of accomplishment?

Indeed they are, and now we have in most modern centers the plan that includes other things besides marks in judging the child's fitness to proceed; for example, application, earnestness, promptness and general mental qualification.

What educators dread today is the bright youngling, as well as his slower brother or sister. There is the one who grasps lessons so quickly that he can do two grades in the same time others take for one.

Slow and Bright Suffer
Today it is believed wise to give him his chance because once he becomes bored with humdrum repetition, he loses incentive and may develop a listlessness to all studies. But to let him go ahead with other children with more advanced interests and outside experience, leaves him with a badly off as ever. That is the problem that worries school authorities.

And the same reason holds good for retarding the slower child. It may be to his best interest to take a grade over again. Perhaps he has been ill for a period, or has been doing grade work less suited to his perceptions, as happens sometimes. Or he may merely have developed a certain mental confusion to all study that makes it necessary to straighten him out. In all kindness this is often the wisest thing to do. But he will not fit in quite as well with the children, generally speaking, because they will be just enough young to make him feel out of it. This leads to unhappiness and loneliness. Not in all cases, of course, but it is common enough to give the teachers and principals pause.

Avoid Pushing Student
Many systems of promoting have been tried out. Experiments have covered much ground. In some instances schools did away with written finals only to resume them, deciding that they were necessary if only to discover mental quality, independent of actual facts and knowledge. Besides it was quite evident that some children, without the idea of tests ahead, were soldiering sadly on daily work. And say so we like about the harm of competition, on the whole most children like it. And what a feather in their caps to "pass."

Thus it stands today. Some schools have hesitated to change their system of examinations until something definite has been approved and adopted. Others have reached a compromise. Others have reached a place rather than authority. In cities where there are enough to draw from, there are special classes for the unusual; the gifted, the slow, or those who are out of line with routine studies but normal in another way.

I believe the final examination in some of its forms will stand. Not alone, as it used to, but as a center around which to group the child's other matters. One thing that parents should remember after another said he was sorry, but the kid had no future.

A Book a Day
By Bruce Catton

Must nations have foreign colonies? Everybody seems to think so. The great colonial empires jealously guard their possessions. Italy and Japan go to war to get some. Hitler announces that Germany, too, will get some, or else—

And it is all the most colossal folly known to man.

This is the verdict arrived at in "A Place in the Sun," by Grover Clark (Macmillan; $2.50), a book which every American ought to read as background for the foreign news of the day.

Mr. Clark painstakingly compiles all the figures, and demonstrates that no colonies pay their way. Since the dawn of the modern era of machinery, he says, colonies have signally failed to do any of the things they are supposed to do.

First of all, they don't pay. In no case have the profits from colonial trade amounted to nearly as much as the nation in question has spent to get and administer the colonies. Individual men or industries may have profited, to be sure; the nation, as a whole, invariably loses.

Nor do colonies provide outlets for

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD.—Eleanor Powell is the stubbornest person you're likely to see in a month of movie-going.

She wasn't always like that. In fact, the only reason her parents sent her to dancing school was in the hope that she'd overcome an acute case of ingrowing shyness. She did, and also learned acrobatic and ballet dancing, and went job-hunting on Broadway.

One summer after another said he was sorry, but the kid had no future.

surplus population. Europe has sent millions of people to the independent nations of America; to its own colonies it has sent only the scum of the dregs of its population. Overcrowded Italy and Japan have emphatically failed to settle in their overseas possessions.

Lastly, says Mr. Clark, colonies are of no help in war unless a nation can control its overseas communications; and if it can do that, it can get its essentials from neutrals as well as from its colonies.

It is a powerful indictment that Mr. Clark has drawn up. It makes the great scramble for colonies look like the most tragic waste of modern times.

The Ideal Graduation Gift

in the theater; she didn't know tap steps. So Miss Powell took 10 tap lessons in rapid succession, practiced night and day by herself for a few weeks, then made the rounds of the casting offices again.

A job? Why, sure, kid; just sign on the dotted line!

Sure-Fire Hit
She was a show-stopper from the beginning. Besides dancing skill, she had comedy ability and an intuitive judgment of what audiences wanted. Some wanted subtle, difficult stuff; others craved a frenzy of action.

One time she played Omaha, and the customers sat on their hands. She couldn't understand what was wrong, and doesn't know yet. But Miss Powell was determined not to have her record spoiled, so a year later she instated that her managers books her for a solid week in Omaha.

It was a gesture of pure stubbornness that entailed a lot of traveling and expense for her.

She stopped every performance during that week, and cleared her conscience of the previous failure.

Work Against Odds
It was one of her Broadway shows that brought the greatest discouragement and difficulty. I won't mention the name of the man in charge of that showman, anyway.

After Eleanor was assigned a role, she learned that she was expected to be nice to this producer. "Nice" is not exactly the word, but it was the term used. Being too stubborn to quit, she became as cold and distant as the poles. The fellow couldn't fire her, because she was stopping the show every night, and was rating cheers from the critics.

But he could, and did, subject her to a dozen forms of persecution. People who knew that story from the inside say it was like tent-show melodrama, with the villain twirling his mustaches which might either remove the little fir-ru from the company or put her in his power-r-r-r.

Despite Bad Breaks
It was theatrical oppression. She'd be ordered in for morning rehearsals, and nobody would show up. Her solo dancing act would be stopped as part of the opening number at one performance, or next-to-closing at the following show.

Or she might be called to follow the most hilarious bit in the program,

The GLAMOROUS ADVENTURE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GAIL EYERETT, ambitious to become a designer, comes to New York—and ends up in a strike of luck—hired by MADAME LIZETTE, proprietor of an exclusive shop. Madame proves temperamental and difficult to work for.

DEREK HARGREAVES, young artist, is interested in Gail and offers her friendly advice. Frequently she sees LUCILLE, whose sister, ROSEMARY, was her roommate at school.

MEANWHILE, in Arizona, MARK CHAPMAN, long a wanderer, returns to find his old home in the hands of the Travers Mining Co. Mark suspects the deal is crooked. He does not know the whereabouts of his niece, Gail, the rightful owner of the property. LUCILLE, Madame Lizette's niece, is representing the Travers company.

Mark tells his friend, old JED HOSKEDER, what he knows about the Travers company and writes a letter to GILES HARDING, New York lawyer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVIII

"HELLO, old thing!" Rosemary rushed toward Gail, coming out of the employees' entrance of Madame Lizette's shop at 5 o'clock. "I'm frightfully sorry I got you into such a jam!"

"Oh, don't worry about that."

"Well, that woman has no right to talk to you like that. You're no slave. I think it's horrible that you have to work for such a creature, and before that I thought you were lucky! But, come on—hop in the car. I'll take you to your clubhouse."

"You don't need to do that, Rosemary."

"I know, but I'm staying in town with the Langs for a few days—you know Betts is getting married—so I can't invite you to dinner. Some friends of Betts are giving her a dinner tonight. How about meeting me for lunch tomorrow?"

"I'd love to, though I only have an hour."

"Well, we can make it in an hour all right. And say, Gail, I wish you could let Madame Lizette know that I was going to order a dress for Betts' wedding this afternoon but now she's lost that order and a lot more because I'll never recommend her to any of my friends."

"I can't say I'm sorry."

"Have you seen any of the girls since you came to New York?"

"Only Lucille!"

"Lucille? Where did you meet her?" asked Rosemary eagerly.

"At Mrs. Morton's."

"You must come and see me sometime. Thanks ever so much for the lift."

"That's nothing! Be seeing you tomorrow at noon." With a goodbye wave Rosemary was on her way again.

GAIL watched her go. Why hadn't she made it clear that Derek had no connection with the carefree days when her father was alive?

"Well, well, if it isn't Gail, looking so chipper I guess Madame must still be at home!" Natalie Preston slipped her arm through Gail's.

"Hello, Natalie! We're dining together tonight, aren't we?"

"Oh, that will be nice. I feel quite let down today."

"Didn't you have a good time with your cousin?"

"Did I? I should say not! After rushing down thinking she had only a few minutes to spare I found she'd made a mistake about the time her train started and had to sit and listen to all the news about her babies, the horses, cows, dogs and chickens! You may thank your stars you haven't a soul who has any strings on you. Then I came home and found that you were gone! But I suppose your boy friend thought you should spend another day at Heart's Delight!"

"Sorry you had such rotten luck. I wasn't down on the Island."

"No?" questioned Natalie incredulously, remembering that there had been no light in Gail's room as she walked down the corridor about 11.

"Of course not! A friend called and took me to a reception at Mrs. Morton's."

"Mrs. Morton of Park avenue, the patron saint of all young artists?"

"Yes." Quickly Gail told of her first meeting with the older woman. Then she ended with, "She asked Derek Hargreaves to bring me along."

"That rising young portrait painter?"

Gail nodded.

"So you know him too!" exclaimed Natalie.

"Yes, he and the Searies are my only friends in New York. Of course the Searies are down on Long Island for part of the summer. I'm lunching with Rosemary tomorrow. Would you like to join us?"

quainted with any of the smart little places in their vicinity. She was amused at Natalie's eagerness to learn all about Mrs. Morton's reception, Derek's work, and when she was to see him again.

Their talk drifted to other topics, and in the course of the conversation Natalie mentioned some stocks she'd just bought. "One of my friends will have quite a few position with a broken old rod of the other day I'd better get rid of my Travers stuff I might have, as there are rumors Mr. Travers is not finding it so easy."

"You mean the Mining company—Lucille's father?"

"Yes," answered Natalie. "Of course I don't buy mining stocks, so I've nothing to dispose of, but one thing I can tell you—every time Arlene has given me a tip like that she's been right."

"But I thought the Travers family were so rich!" exclaimed

"Oh, right now they still have plenty, but you should see what a rumor on Wall Street can do to any fortune, especially if it's the least bit shaky."

When Gail said good night to Natalie, her thoughts were still with Lucille. What would she do if anything happened to her father's fortune?

DEREK HARGREAVES glanced at his wrist watch. It was five minutes to five. He hung his palette on the wall of his studio, stuck his brushes into a jar, and pulled off his smock.

He hadn't realized that this was Wednesday—the last day the Ferrara Gallery would be open in the evening. He was smiling when he reached the avenue. Half a block more and he'd surely meet her. Suddenly round the corner she came!

"Gail!" he cried, as, with outstretched hands, he welcomed her. "I was afraid I'd miss you. Sweet, and we must see the pictures to-night or Mrs. Morton will never forgive us. And we're going to dinner first. Yes—right away!"

He added, as a questioning look came into her eyes,

"Oh, but I feel so grubby. I must go home and get cleaned up."

"Well, come on back to my studio. It's quite near. And I can show you Lucille's portrait."

"You've started it already?"

"Yes, Lucille's given me three sittings. Quite an amusing girl, isn't she?"

They entered the studio and closed the door behind them. Swiftly Derek drew her to his heart. "Darling," he whispered, "tell me you love me!"

Insanity Plea in Minister's Trial

Preacher Thought He Was in Danger of Death, Oil Man Says

HOUSTON, Texas.—(AP)—Testimony that the Rev. Edgar Eskridge was laboring under the impression his life was in danger the day Police Chief Ed O'Reilly was shot to death at Orange was heard at the preacher's trial Monday as the defense sought to bolster its plea of temporary insanity.

Clarence Keown, Orange oil man, testified that he talked with the minister the day of the killing, May 29, 1935, and that he heard Eskridge say: "Today is my day of execution. I'm going to stay and take it like a man."

The witness said he tried to quiet the minister.

"I got him to go with me," Keown said. "We went for a ride. He was wild and cursing. He had a .22 rifle in the car with him at the time. He threatened to kill me so finally I left him."

Keown said he had been a business partner of Eskridge and told of Eskridge's buying a boat for $500.

"When the boat was delivered, I had to go on Eskridge's note at the bank for the $500 to pay for it," Keown said.

Keown's wife, pianist at Eskridge's First Baptist church at Orange, said she noted changes in the pastor that led her to believe he was insane.

Defense attorneys said expert testimony would climax their case.

Business Partners Die One Day Apart

TEXARKANA.—E. D. Gillen and Mrs. E. L. Reeves, partners in the furniture business here, both died suddenly within 24 hours—Mr. Gillen Sunday and Mrs. Reeves Monday.

Gillen and Mrs. Reeves previously had been partners in a similar business here until 26 years ago, when Gillen sold his interest to Reeves and removed to Cape Girardeau, Mo., where he engaged in business. Reeves died several years later and Mrs. Reeves operated the business here.

Gillen returned to Texarkana in 1930, and soon entered into a partnership with his former associate's widow.

The syndicates was a curious deer-like animal that lived in North America millions of years ago.

When the audience was too busy laughing to pay much attention to the stage. A comedy-exit routine which she had originated was given to the leading lady, and the latter even acquired part of Miss Powell's costume.

She stuck it out. Audiences continued to clamor for encores and bows. Critics who had guessed what was going on, continued their praise. Miss Powell's tenacity again had worked to her advantage.

Not many months ago she met her one-time tormentor at a party, and to a couple of his friends he introduced her as "the finest little girl in the show business." Bystanders gawped at the full irony of her well-earned revenge.

Snubbed Into Stardom
When she came to Hollywood, Miss Powell had been engaged for a hoofing part. And, but for an incident which aroused her native stubbornness, she still might be a hooper.

It happened at a local night club. She was introduced at a table where sat some more or less distinguished actresses, and some prominent studio executives. Somebody asked: "What do you do, Miss Powell?"

"I'm a tap-dancer."

"Oh-h-h-h."

It was a patronizing "Oh-h-h-h," a response of cooling interest and dismissal. Right then she decided to stick around and amount to something in talkietown.

A few weeks later—weeks, mind you—she was a star. And now she's back again, with a schedule of three big pictures.

A Prayer
Dear Lord, in the battle that goes on through life,
I ask but a field that is fair,
A chance that is equal with all in the strife,
A courage to strive and to dare;
And if I should win, let it be by the code
With my faith and my honor held high;
And if I should lose, let me stand by the road,
And cheer as the winners go by.
And Lord, may my shouts be ungrudging and clear,
A tribute that comes from the heart,
And let me not cherish a snarl or a sneer
Or play any sniveling part.
So grant me to conquer, if conquer I can,
By proving my worth in the fray,
But teach me to lose like a regular man,
And not like a craven, I pray:
Let me take off my hat to the warriors who stand
To victory splendid and high,
Yea, teach me to stand by the side of the road
And cheer as the winners go by.

The vast sweep of the Texas Panhandle, with its 300-mile square dust bowl, has been transformed into a lake! Water covered fields, highways were inundated, and residents of scattered villages plowed through mired streets, the above scene being typical after slow, steady rains fell for nearly two weeks. Drouth of four years was ended by the persistent downpour, and streams have been running bankfull. Precipitation approached an all-time record in the vicinity of Amarillo, Tex., metropolis of the Panhandle.

Chiang Against War on Japanese

Says Question of War and Peace Can Be Settled at Nanking

NANKING, China.—(AP)—The most powerful man in China, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, virtual dictator of the Nanking National government, sharply opposed Monday night a war against Japan. Chiang also said there would be no civil war between the Nanking and Canton governments.

The question of war or peace, he said, can be decided only by the government here. Chiang said, however, that "the Southwest's spirit of national salvation and desire for national solidarity are in direct accord with the central government."

"I am sure," he said, "the leaders of Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces (which make up the Canton government) will not seize upon the diplomatic policy of the Central government a san abili to start a civil war. "The real situation in the Southwest at present is not entirely known, but common sense tells us the authorities there could not have plans to mobilize their troops. Such a thing would be folly during the present national crisis."

The general said he did not believe dispatches from Canton reporting the Kwangtung and Kwangsi armies were mobilizing.

50-Year-Old Woman Is Found Wondering in Woods Near Stuttgart

STUTTGART—Efforts to identify a 50-year-old, gray-haired woman, who was found in a wooded section nine miles east of here Sunday, an apparent victim of amnesia, had gotten no results Monday night.

The woman, brought to Stuttgart, said she could recall all that had happened since she was discovered in the woods Sunday afternoon, but nothing before that time.

Mayor J. G. Wilson of Ulm, who also is a physician, said a blow might have caused the woman's loss of memory, but he found no marks of violence on her body.

The only trace of memory she has shown, Mayor Wilson said, was Monday morning on passing a rice well derick.

"That looks like an oil well," she said, "I remember oil wells."
